FOUNDATION FOR APPALACHIAN OHIO

ANNUAL REPORT
— 2013 —
CELEBRATING 15 YEARS

Dear Friends,

It is hard to believe the Foundation for Appalachian Ohio is celebrating its fifteenth year of service to our region... until we reflect on all that has been accomplished.

The creation of the Foundation in 1998 represented a turning point in Appalachian Ohio's history. For the first time, the region's citizens and communities had a regional champion to help develop philanthropy.

Over the last fifteen years, the Foundation has teamed with citizens to demonstrate the power of philanthropy to create opportunities. More than 100 charitable funds have been established and more than $3.3 million in grants and scholarships have been awarded, with each of the thirty-two counties receiving funding.

The Foundation has worked with a long-term view, initiating efforts to build a lasting culture of philanthropic investment. The Child of Appalachia initiative has especially been effective in de-bunking stereotypes that only the wealthy can make a difference through philanthropy, and our Growing Home initiatives have attracted gifts that the region would otherwise have lost.

With each year of investment, the Foundation has built the charitable dollars available to our citizens and communities. Within the last five years, the Foundation has tripled its asset size to $15 million, while also generating over $10 million in additional support to philanthropic, educational, and economic development initiatives.

As we look toward the Foundation's next fifteen years, the timing could not be better for bringing permanent closure to the "philanthropy gap" holding the region back.

Our results and future potential belong to the people of Appalachian Ohio. Our region's people understand human need in a very personal way, and they repeatedly rise to give generously of time, talent, and treasure.

We thank you for all you are investing and for the difference you are making. We look forward to continuing our work together in the coming years.

Sincerely,

Joy Padgett

In celebration of 15 years, we've updated our logo to better capture the Spirit of Philanthropy at the heart of what we do. Instead of simply showing where we work, we wanted our logo to inspire others to see how we work.

We've also launched a new website at www.appalachianohio.org to make it easier for you to make a difference in Appalachian Ohio. Please visit us online! 🌱

Fund Spotlight: Guernsey County Foundation Fund

Guernsey County Foundation Fund Making a Difference by Growing Home

As the Foundation for Appalachian Ohio's first local partnership to build community-based funding, the Guernsey County Foundation Fund is an example of what a community can achieve through philanthropy.

The goal of the Guernsey County Foundation Fund is to improve the quality of life for its community, both now and for generations to come. In partnership with FAO, the Guernsey County Foundation Fund has made tremendous progress toward that goal, establishing 25 separate funds totaling $3 million in assets.

"This partnership with FAO is a structure that allows donors to meet their charitable giving goals and creates endowment for future funding," explained Maribeth Wright of the Guernsey County Foundation Fund Board.

The Guernsey Family of Funds includes a wide range of resources, such as the Guernsey County Senior Citizen Center Fund, the Southeast Ohio Regional Medical Center-Guernsey Health Foundation Fund, and a number of scholarship funds. A full list of funds to benefit Guernsey County can be found on FAO's website - www.appalachianohio.org.

"We felt that we needed direction on how to build community assets," said Wright. "The FAO staff was instrumental in providing guidance and mentorship to make this happen."

The Guernsey County Foundation Fund focuses on fundraising and grant recommendations, knowing FAO will handle administrative tasks, investments, IRS requirements, and support to development.

"The trustees of the Guernsey County Foundation Fund are all community leaders with professional jobs and our time is limited, so we need the help of an organization like FAO to help us meet our goals of community asset development," continued Wright.

"A lot of gifts come from people who have grown up in their community, but live somewhere else," shared FAO's President and CEO Cara Dingus Brook. "While they can't go home, they can grow home."

Donor Spotlight: Ohio CAT

Ohio CAT celebrates five-year investment in philanthropy

FAO found a special partner in Ohio CAT when Ohio CAT made a five-year pledge of $250,000 to the Foundation. With this commitment, Ohio CAT led the way for businesses to make community philanthropy a priority. Over our five years of partnership, Ohio CAT has been a part of significant change for our region.

“Investing in Appalachian Ohio with FAO has been a meaningful way to be supportive of what philanthropy can do in the area,” said Ken Taylor, president of Ohio CAT. “It’s an opportunity to do good.”

Ohio CAT, headquartered in Broadview Heights, is the exclusive, authorized dealer for Caterpillar equipment and engines throughout Ohio, northern Kentucky, and southeastern Indiana.

With its business reaching across many communities in Appalachian Ohio, Taylor felt it was a natural decision to give through a regional organization. “I have an attachment to the area. I have a relationship with the citizens in these communities.”

Ohio CAT has made many projects possible for Appalachian Ohio through support of FAO’s I’m a Child of Appalachia Campaign, including the writing contest and awards, as well as the launch of the Regional Opportunity Scorecard (read more on page 5).

Of the many opportunities Ohio CAT’s gift has funded, Taylor remembers his time learning about science with local students best. “COSI on Wheels is the project with which I’ve been the most involved. I found it rewarding to speak at their assemblies and interact with children in a school environment.”

For any company looking for a way to provide enrichment opportunities to Appalachian communities, Taylor recommends FAO as a way to give.

“It’s nice to know there’s a foundation with which people can work to philanthropically invest in the future,” said Ken Taylor, president of Ohio CAT. “If a person wants to be connected with a professional and philanthropic agency, this is one with long-term sustainable development in the region.”

Ohio CAT and FAO bring COSI on Wheels to Harrison East Elementary School in Hopedale, Ohio. Ken Taylor and Cara Dingus Brook have a little fun with the student participants.

GROWING ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY

Three years ago, Appalachian Ohio did not have a regional entity to give our development leaders voice and a way to work together across communities. Without this centralized group, our region was missing out on economic and community development opportunities.

FAO made a decision to form an organization to serve Appalachian Ohio in this way. Through the Foundation's leadership, significant time from Greg Adams to serve as a volunteer director in the organization's earliest days, and the collaboration of economic development leaders in our region, the Foundation for Appalachian Ohio incubated and launched the Appalachian Partnership for Economic Growth (APEG), with a mission of creating jobs in Appalachian Ohio.

We will continue to work together to ensure our citizens and communities have access to the resources and opportunities needed to grow stronger.

With the Partnership at work under the direction of John Molinaro, APEG has already helped create 3,250 jobs for citizens in our region – a sure sign the Foundation's investment in growing this organization was an investment in the future of Appalachian Ohio.

Measuring Progress Together

We've all heard the saying, "You get what you measure." The Foundation for Appalachian Ohio hopes this is true because the newly released Regional Opportunity Scorecard outlines eight goals for our region in the areas of philanthropy, education, the economy, and community development. These quality-of-life goals have been proposed as a pathway to a more prosperous region.

With a grant from the JPMorgan Chase Foundation, FAO worked with partners across the region to release the first Scorecard at our December 6th Child of Appalachia Celebration. Designed to be a dynamic tool that will change over time, this first edition is meant to give us a starting point for discussion and action.

Celebrating the 2013 Child of Appalachia Honoree

Every year, the Foundation honors an individual who embodies its mission of creating opportunities for the citizens and communities of Appalachian Ohio by inspiring and supporting philanthropy. In December, over 160 people came together to recognize Greg Adams as the Foundation's 2013 Child of Appalachia Honoree.

Greg embodies a Child of Appalachia – an outstanding citizen of Appalachian Ohio, making a difference in the lives of others. As a full-time volunteer director for the Ohio Appalachian Business Council, Greg supported the Foundation in leading the incubation of the Appalachian Partnership for Economic Growth, a regional economic development organization.

A successful entrepreneur, Greg launched and built Resource Systems, which was recently acquired by Cerner, with fellow Muskingum University graduate and business partner Larry Triplett. In addition to service on a variety of boards, church, and civic groups, Greg is the CEO of TDPI Ventures and has served as the Mayor of New Concord since 1986.

“Greg is an inspiration to us,” said Cara Dingus Brook. “He has been a champion for Appalachian Ohio and his dedication to the region is clear in his professional, community, and personal work.”

This year's celebration was supported by the Greg and Eileen Adams Family; the Appalachian Partnership for Economic Growth; AT&T; Mike Bennett; Bricker and Eckler; Cramer and Associates; Guernsey-Muskingum Electric Cooperative; Joel Guth; John Gerlach and Co.; Thomas Johnson; Kegler Brown Hill + Ritter; Muskingum County Community Foundation; Muskingum University; Ohio CAT; Origo Branding Company; Larry Triplett; U.S. Bank; and the Foundation's Board of Trustees.

GRANTS

Grant Spotlight: Mini-grant Makes Creative Biology Adventure Possible

High school students learn while engaging elementary students

Kip Brady's students were working on insect collections when he launched into a story about a large wasp. "The students were enthralled. This gave me the idea of having them develop children's stories about the interesting life histories of local forest species. I started preparing my grant proposal that evening."

Kip Brady's biology class at New Philadelphia High School is a recipient of an AEP Access to Environmental Education Mini-Grant to benefit both high school and elementary students.

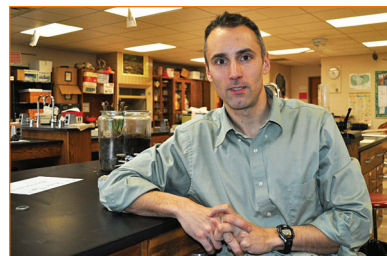

Grant in hand, Brady and his students are now delving into their project, known as Forest Stories. "I'm developing a list of local forest species. My biology students have organized into small groups and will select species to research. They'll develop a slideshow, share these with their class, and receive input on what their peers find most interesting. From there, they will develop story lines."

It may surprise some that writing non-fiction books would play a central role in a science project. On the contrary, Brady sees this as an important opportunity. "One of the key content statements in the new [state education] standards for kindergarten is that students explore 'grade-appropriate, non-fiction books that accurately describe the characteristics of living things found in Ohio'," said Brady.

"For our district's kindergarten students, this project means they get to learn about local species through a combination of books and direct experience. By interacting with high school students, this project will broaden these young students' concept of community."

The AEP Access to Environmental Education Fund, a permanent grantmaking endowment for the purpose of supporting environmental education efforts benefiting youth who live in the 32 counties of Appalachian Ohio, is essential for projects like this one. "This is a very powerful educational experience, but it would probably not be possible without grant funding," said Brady.
