

Questions for the Creative Children of Appalachia

The Foundation for Appalachian Ohio has encouraged our region's young people to believe in their ability to succeed through the I'm a Child of Appalachia Writing Contest. As Henry Ford said, "Whether you think you can, or you think you can't, you're right."

FAO launched the I'm a Child of Appalachia Writing Contest in 2006 and, in the intervening years, we've developed several writing prompts to inspire creativity among children throughout our communities. If you're looking for new ways to engage your children during this time of physical distancing, here is a packet of worksheets including and inspired by former Writing Contest prompts.

Once your children have explored their creative side with these worksheets, we hope you'll scan or photograph the completed worksheets to share your child's brilliance with FAO and the world! Just post them on Facebook in a public post, tagging the Foundation for Appalachian Ohio, or send them to info@ffao.org for a chance for your child's work to be shared with our audience!

We could all use some wisdom and creativity from the children of Appalachian Ohio right now!
